Homeland IV 1:12

After getting dosed with a chemical weapon last season and falling into a coma, Quinn somehow miraculously survived. (He is one tough cookie, after all.) But though he's recovering in a VA hospital in New York City, Carrie discovers he's not showing up for physical therapy like he should. When she does track him down, he looks terrible: weak, bleary-eyed and unshaven. She nags him to go back to therapy, but he doesn't want to: "I'm not getting any better." And even his nurses think Carrie's visits are doing more harm than good, so she gives him some space.

Runtime: 48 min. DR2

Homeland 2:12

Carrie and her Muslim-advocacy colleague Reda visit Sekou in jail, and want to know about the five grand in cash Conlin found under his mattress. Sekou says it was a loan, to fly his family to Nigeria to see his deported dad. Who loaned him the money? His friend who was helping him make those terrorist-promoting videos.
